

Table of Contents

Preface

1. Praise as a Constitutive Act
 - The Psalms as Creative Acts
 - The Constitutive Power of Praise
 - World-making as an Imaginative Enterprise
 - Conclusion

2. The "World" of Israel's Doxology
 - The Gospel of Enthronement
 - The Liturgy of Liberation
 - A New world for Exiles
 - Conclusion

3. Doxology at the Edge of Ideology: The King of Majesty and Mercy
 - Reality Given, Reality Imposed
 - The Gospel Under Royal Supervision
 - The Interplay of Resilience and Distortion
 - World-making and Royal Legitimacy
 - "Singing Down" and "Singing Up"
 - A World Sung as Raw, Primitive, Revolutionary

4. Doxology without Reason: The Loss of Israel's World of Hope
 - When Summons Preempts Reason
 - When Concreteness Is Generalized
 - When Transformation Becomes Abiding Order
 - A Mute God, a Static World
 - A World Ordered against Hope

5. Doxology inside the "Claims of Time and Sorrow"
 - A World Too Certain
 - Pain as the Locus of Possibility
 - Pain as the Matrix of Praise
 - Little Stories of Hurt, Little Songs of Grief
 - A New God Sung to Reality
 - The Praise of God as Duty and Delight

Notes

Scripture Index