

Foreword	ix
Acknowledgments	xi
Introduction	1
1. Suffering—A Social Reality	9
Femicide in Ciudad Juárez	11
A Social-Suffering Hermeneutic	19
“Reading” the Femicide	26
Conclusion	37
2. Suffering, Social Imaginaries, and the Making of Evil	39
Social Imaginaries and the Making of Evil	40
Cultural-Symbolic Female Representations of Suffering	47
The Drive for Release, the Quest for Salvation	58
Conclusion	68
3. Anselm and Salvation	69
Anselm’s Context and the Argument of Cur Deus Homo	71
The Historic Legacy of Cur Deus Homo	82
Cur Deus Homo and the Ciudad Juárez Femicide	86
Conclusion	95

4. Responding to Social Suffering—Practices of Resistance	97
Tilling the Soil: Practices of Resistance in the Midst of Suffering	99
Popular Religious Practices and Practices of Resistance	105
Claiming Space, Processing Pain, and Social Imagination	111
Conclusion	121
5. On the Possibility of Salvation	123
On Matters of Suffering and Response	124
On the Primacy of Community	132
Furthering the Realization of Salvation	141
Conclusion	152
Notes	153
For Further Reading	175
Index	182