

Table of Contents

Acknowledgments

Introduction

1. Super, Natural Christians
Supernatural vs. Super, Natural Christians
Christian Nature Spirituality
2. Consider the Lilies of the Field: How Should Christians Love Nature?
Paying Attention
Two Ways to Seeing the World
The Arrogant Eye vs. the Loving Eye
The Subject-Subjects Model
Care or Rights?
Map or Hike?
3. Christians and Nature: Past and Present
Is Nature like Us?
Medieval vs. Ecological Relationship
The Medieval Picture
The Present: Our Loss of Nature
4. The Arrogant Eye: Knowing Nature as Object
Nature: Landscape or Maze?
Knowledge: The Eye of the Mind
Nature: The Mirror of the Mind
5. The Loving Eye: Knowing Nature as Subject
In Touch with the Others: A Radical Suggestion
Being and Knowing the Ecological Model
The Subject-Subjects Model and Nature
The Loving Eye

6. Down to Earth: Close Encounters with the Nature World

Do Touch: Experience, Place, Wildness

Nature Writing: Mediating the Second Naiveté

Geography vs. Autobiography: Three Examples of Nature

Halting the Extinction of Experience

7. Caring for the Others

The Ecological Model and the Community of Care

The Ecological Model and Christian Spirituality

Epilogue

Notes

Index