

Table of Contents

Introduction

Part I: The Practice of Planetary Theology

Chapter 1: A Brief Credo
A Religious Autobiography
Some Reflections
Thinking Theologically
A Credo

Chapter 2: Theology Matters
Is Theology Possible for North American Christians?
Ecological Theology: A North American Liberation Theology

Chapter 3: The Matter of Theology
Contexts
Content
Criteria

Part II: The Context of Planetary Theology

Introduction

Chapter 4: The Contemporary Economic Model and Worldview
Neo-Classical Economics and Its Worldview
The Contemporary Economic Worldview and the Consumer Society
An Assessment of the Consumer Society

Chapter 5: The Ecological Economic Model and Worldview
Ecological Economics and Its Worldview
The Ecological Economic Worldview and the Ecological Society
An Assessment of the Ecological Society

Part III: The Content of Planetary Theology

Introduction

Chapter 6: God and the World

Some Preliminary Reflections

Beginning With God

God is Love: The Many Ways to Say It

God as Creator, Liberator, and Sustainer

How is God Present in the World?

Is Reality Good?

Chapter 7: Christ and Salvation

Christ and the Neo-Classical Economic Worldview

Ecological Christologies

An Ecological Economic Christology: Prophetic and Sacramental

Christ and the Ecological Economic Worldview

Chapter 8: Life in the Spirit

Human Existence in the Spirit

The Life of Discipleship: John Woolman and Dorothy Day

Life in the Church

Life in Society

Epilogue

Appendix: A Manifesto to North American Middle-Class Christians

Notes

Index