

Contents

Preface	xi
Part A. Purpose, History, and Problems of a Literary History of the Old Testament	1
I. Why Do We Need a Literary History of the Old Testament?	1
1. The Task	1
2. History of Scholarship	4
3. Place Within Theology	14
4. The Old Testament as a Segment of the Literature of Ancient Israel	15
5. Hebrew Bibles and Old Testaments	17
6. The Problem of an “Original Text” of the Old Testament	23
7. Old Testament Literary History and Criticism within the Field of Old Testament Study	24
8. Bases, Conditions, Possibilities, and Limitations of Historical Reconstruction	25
9. Recent Trends in Old Testament Research and Their Consequences for a Literary History of the Old Testament	28
II. Language, Writing, Books, and Literary Production in Ancient Israel	33
1. Language and Writing	33
2. Material Aspects of Literary Production	35
3. Socio-literary Aspects of the Production and Reception of Literature	35
4. Authors and Redactors	39

5. The Contemporary Audience for the Old Testament Literature	41
6. Elements of Form-Critical Development	42
III. Methods and Presentation	45
1. The Cultural Impact of the Ancient Near Eastern Empires and the Periodization of Old Testament Literature	45
2. Historical Contextualization	47
3. Theological Characterizations	48
4. Form-, Tradition-, and Social-Critical Distinctions in Old Testament Tradition	48
5. “Horizontal” and “Vertical” Relationships among Old Testament Texts and Writings	50
6. Redaction as Intra-Biblical Reception	50
7. Tradition and Memory	51
Part B. The Beginnings of Ancient Israel’s Literature among the Syro-Palestinian City-States before the Advent of the Assyrians (Tenth–Eighth Centuries B.C.E.)	53
I. Historical Backgrounds	53
II. Theological Characterizations	55
III. Spheres of Tradition	57
1. Cultic and Wisdom Traditions	57
a. Literature at the Sanctuaries of the Northern Kingdom	57
b. Literature of the Jerusalem Temple Cult	58
c. Wisdom Traditions	61
2. Annals and Narrative Traditions	63
a. Northern Kingdom Traditions	63
b. Literature of the Jerusalem Court	66
Part C. The Literature of the Assyrian Period (Eighth–Seventh Centuries B.C.E.)	71
I. Historical Backgrounds	71
II. Theological Characterizations	74
III. Spheres of Tradition	76
1. Cultic and Wisdom Traditions	76
a. Psalms	76
b. Early Wisdom Literature	78

2. Narrative Traditions	79
a. The Beginnings of the Deuteronomistic “Books of Kings”	79
b. Traditions of the Judges (Judges 3–9)	86
c. The Moses-Exodus Story	87
d. The Abraham-Lot Cycle	93
3. Prophetic Traditions	96
a. Beginnings of Prophetic Tradition in the Books of Hosea and Amos	97
b. The Earliest Isaiah Traditions and Their Josianic Reception	101
4. Legal Traditions	107
a. The Book of the Covenant	107
b. Deuteronomy	111
Part D. The Literature of the Babylonian Period (Sixth Century B.C.E.)	117
I. Historical Backgrounds	117
II. Theological Characterizations	119
III. Spheres of Tradition	124
1. Cultic and Wisdom Traditions	124
a. Lamentations as Anti-Psalms	124
b. Laments of the People and the Collectivization of Individual Psalms	127
2. Narrative Traditions	128
a. The Hezekiah-Isaiah Narratives	128
b. The Continuation of Samuel–2 Kings by 2 Kings 24–25	130
c. The Origins of the Major Historical Work Exodus 2–2 Kings 25	131
d. The Joseph Narrative	134
e. The Patriarchal Narratives in Genesis	136
f. The Non-Priestly Sinai Tradition	140
3. Prophetic Traditions	141
a. Beginnings of the Jeremiah Tradition	141
b. Beginnings of the Ezekiel Tradition	146
c. Deutero-Isaiah	147
4. Legal Traditions	153
a. The Decalogue	153
b. The Deuteronomistic Deuteronomy	154

Part E. The Literature of the Persian Period
(Fifth–Fourth Centuries B.C.E.)	157
I. Historical Backgrounds	157
II. Theological Characterizations	162
III. Spheres of Tradition	164
1. Cultic and Wisdom Traditions	164
a. The Priestly Writing	164
b. Theocratic Psalms	170
c. Job	171
2. Narrative Traditions	173
a. The Non-Priestly Primeval History	173
b. Daniel Legends (Daniel *1–6)	177
c. The Origins of the Major Historical Work Genesis–2 Kings	179
d. Ezra–Nehemiah	181
3. Prophetic Traditions	182
a. Haggai/Zechariah	182
b. Continuations of Deutero-Isaiah and Trito-Isaiah	186
c. Continuations of Jeremiah and Ezekiel	189
d. The “Deuteronomistic” Theology of Repentance	194
e. The Biblical Construction of Classical Prophecy	195
4. Legal Traditions	196
a. The Holiness Code	196
b. The Book of Numbers	198
c. The Formation of the Torah	199
Part F. The Literature of the Ptolemaic Period
(Third Century B.C.E.)	203
I. Historical Backgrounds	203
II. Theological Characterizations	205
III. Spheres of Tradition	206
1. Wisdom Traditions	206
a. Proverbs 1–9	206
b. Job 28 and Job 32–37	210
c. Qoheleth	211
d. The “Messianic Psalter”	213
EXCURSUS: THE RISE OF APOCALYPTICISM	214

2. Narrative Traditions	215
a. Chronicles	215
b. Development of the Balaam Pericope	219
c. Hellenistic Elements in the Davidic Tradition	219
d. Esther	220
e. The Translation of the Torah into Greek	220
3. Prophetic Traditions	221
a. Judgment-of-the-World Texts in the Corpus propheticum	221
b. The Shaping of a Complete Book of Isaiah (Isaiah 1–62)	224
c. The Devout and the Wicked in Trito-Isaiah	226
d. Return from the Diaspora and Restoration of the Kingdom in Jeremiah	227
e. Deutero- and Trito-Zechariah	228
f. The Redactional Accommodation of the Books of Isaiah and the Twelve Prophets	229
g. The World Empires in Daniel 2 and 7	230
Part G. The Literature of the Seleucid Period
(Second Century B.C.E.)	233
I. Historical Backgrounds	233
II. Theological Characterizations	236
III. Spheres of Tradition	237
1. Cultic and Wisdom Traditions	237
a. Theocratization and Reeschatologization in the Psalter	237
b. Sirach and the Wisdom of Solomon	239
2. Prophetic Traditions	240
a. The Formation of the Nevi'im	240
b. The Maccabean Book of Daniel	241
c. Baruch	243
3. Narrative Traditions	244
a. The Ages of the World in the Narrative Books	244
b. Maccabees, Tobit, Judith, Jubilees	244
Part H. Scripture in Becoming and the Genesis of the Canon	246
I. Distinguishing “Scripture” from “Canon”	246
1. Josephus and 4 Ezra (2 Esdras) 14	247
2. The Prologue to Sirach and “The Law and the Prophets”	248

II. The Scripturalization of the Old Testament Literature Within the Framework of Its History	251
1. The Biblical Presentation	251
2. Religious Texts, Normative Texts, Sacred Scripture, and Canon	252
3. Literary and Canonical History of the Old Testament	255
Notes	258
Bibliography	281
Index of Biblical Passages
Index of Authors	