scholarship that matters

We are excited to bring you the Fall 2013 books!

Advance praise for our new titles

"No other single volume so deftly recounts the entire history of Christian economic ethics, Protestant and Catholic, and its development while so brilliantly engaging in a two-way dialogue between economics and Christian economic ethics."
—John A. Coleman, S.J., Loyola Marymount University
*Find Daniel K. Finn's new book, Christian Economic Ethics, on page 12.

> "A refreshing and convincing challenge to the stock notion that Luther's theology promotes human passivity."
> —Scott Hendrix, *Princeton Theological Seminary
> *Find Mary Gaebler's book, The Courage of Faith, a new exploration of Martin Luther's theology, on page 11

"This is the book I've been waiting for! No other text so brilliantly, and accessibly, introduces readers to the varieties of religious belief and practice as an introduction to Christian theology, placing the Christian theological project squarely within our interreligious landscape."
—Jeannine Hill Fletcher, Fordham University
*Find Kristin Johnston Largen's new book, Finding God Among Our Neighbors, on page 22

> "For me, the balance, logic, and teaching skills of D. Moody Smith and Robert A. Spivey, along with the physical beauty of the book, made it the best available introduction for more than 40 years. The addition to the team of C. Clifton Black . . . has led three distinguished authors to write a brand new, and even more beautiful book!"
> —Francis J. Moloney, *Australian Catholic University
> *Find a new edition of Anatomy of the New Testament on page 4

"From the very first sentence, it holds the attention, arguing a strong, persuasive, coherent, and fresh case supported by immense scholarship and comprehensive theological intelligence."
—Joel B. Green, Fuller Theological Seminary
*Find the long-awaited fourth volume in N. T. Wright's Christian Origins and the Question of God series, Paul and the Faithfulness of God, on page 1

> "This is an interesting and helpful contribution both to our understanding of evolving hermeneutical theories among early Christians and the extent to which such theories emerged from a wider Jewish, pagan, as well as Christian world."
> —James Carleton Paget, *University of Cambridge
> *Find Donald Carlson's new book, Jewish-Christian Interpretation of the Pentateuch in the Pseudo-Clementine Homilies, on page 11.

"The Partridge text plus the student guide . . . make the composite superior to all other texts that I have used over the years. Multi-authorship for the chapters, great illustrations and layout, and less costly than standard texts—all make this book a great acquisition for students."
—Konrad Czynski, Minnesota State University
*Find an exciting announcement about Christopher Partridge's Introduction to World Religions on pages 14 and 15

> "Mark Muesse has created a unique introduction to world religions that delves into the historical phenomenon of the Axial Age"

N. T. Wright is the former Bishop of Durham in the Church of England and one of the world's leading Bible scholars. He is now research professor of New Testament and Early Christianity at the University of St. Andrews. He is the author of over sixty books, including The New Testament and the People of God (1992), Jesus and the Victory of God (1996), and The Resurrection of the Son of God (2003), all published by Fortress Press.

The heart of the argument

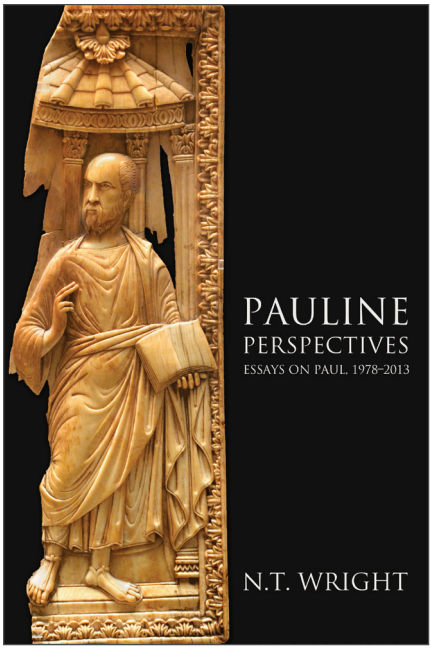

Wright carefully explores the whole context of Paul's thought and activity—Jewish, Greek and Roman, cultural, philosophical, religious, and imperial—and shows how the apostle's worldview and theology enabled him to engage with the many-sided complexities of first-century life that his churches were facing. Wright also provides close and illuminating readings of the letters and other primary sources, along with critical insights into the major twists and turns of exegetical and theological debate in the vast secondary literature.

What scholars are saying

"N. T. Wright's long-awaited full-length study of St. Paul . . . is a worthy successor to his earlier magisterial studies, laying out again very plainly the ways in which the faith of the New Testament is focused on God's purpose to re-create, through the fact of Jesus crucified and risen, our entire understanding of authority and social identity."
—Rowan Williams, Magdalene College, Cambridge

"Only once in every other generation or so does a project approaching the size, scope, and significance of Paul and the Faithfulness of God appear. Paul's world, worldview, controlling stories, and theology spring to life through N. T. Wright's brilliant scholarship and spirited writing. Arguing for narrative and theological coherence in Paul's thought, Wright seeks to overcome numerous dichotomies that have characterized recent Pauline scholarship. Readers will be richly rewarded and challenged at every turn—even when they do not fully agree. Each chapter reveals something profound about the surprising faithfulness of the God freshly revealed in Jesus the Messiah and conveyed to Paul's communities, and to us, by the Spirit."
—Michael J. Gorman, St. Mary's Seminary & University, Baltimore, Maryland

"Breath-taking, mind-expanding, ground-breaking, and more . . . a game-changer, above all for its adventurous presentation of Paul's 'mindset' and theology, so thoroughly contextualized at the confluence of the apostle's Jewish, Roman, and Greek worlds. This is Wright at his best—part historian, part exegete, part theologian, part pedagogue."
—Joel B. Green, Fuller Theological Seminary, California

Pauline Perspectives

Essays on Paul, 1978–2013

N. T. Wright

November

Level: undergraduate and seminary

978-0-8006-9963-5 pb 640pp $69

ebook 978-1-4514-5236-5

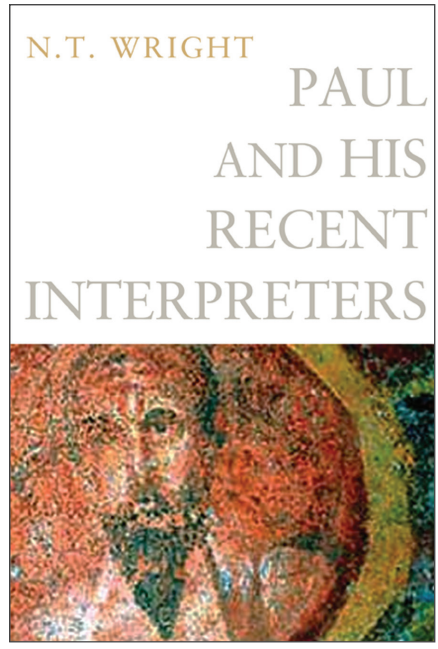

The scope

The articles published here include short autobiographical remarks to contextualize the writings within "real life" and provide detailed, incisive and exquisitely nuanced exegesis. In addition, the text includes previously unpublished exegetical essays on Paul's letter, specially written for this book.

What scholars are saying

"Pauline Perspectives gathers into one convenient place the multitudinous essays and lectures on Paul and his thought world that have come forth from the prolific pen of N. T. Wright during the course of the last 35 years. Here you can see the development of seminal ideas, major themes, and the relentless pursuit of understanding important trajectories in Paul's thought, ranging from justification to the righteousness of God to atonement to much more. . . . Well worth chewing over and always nourishing. Bon appetit!"

—Ben Witherington III,

Paul and His Recent Interpreters

N. T. Wright

February 2014

Level: undergraduate and seminary

978-0-8006-9964-2 pb 384pp $39

ebook 978-1-4514-5235-8

The heart of the argument

This companion volume to N. T. Wright's Paul and the Faithfulness of God and Pauline Perspectives is essential reading for all with a serious interest in Paul, the interpretation of his letters, his appropriation by subsequent thinkers, and his continuing significance today. In the course of this masterly survey, Wright asks searching questions of all of the major contributors to Pauline studies in the last fifty years.

N. T. Wright is research professor of New Testament and Early Christianity at the University of St. Andrews.

Social-Science Commentary on the Deutero-Pauline Letters

Bruce J. Malina and John J. Pilch

November

Level: graduate and seminary

978-0-8006-9967-3 pb 208pp $39

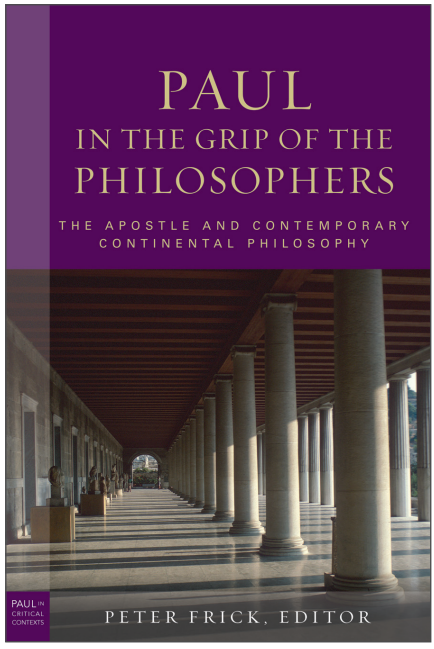

ebook 978-1-4514-5226-6

The heart of the argument

This volume highlights the transformation of the memory of Paul in early Christianity as reflecting the concerns and interest of communities after Paul's death. Malina and Pilch provide the text of the deutero-Pauline letters and cultural notes on them as well as essential "reading scenarios" on specific cultural phenomena in these letters, including forgery, normative conflict, paideia (training), and Household Codes.

Bruce J. Malina is professor of New Testament at Creighton University, Omaha, and author, coauthor, or editor of many influential volumes in New Testament, including the Fortress Press titles Social Science Commentary on the Book of Revelation (2000) and Social Science Commentary on the Synoptic Gospels (Second Edition 2003).

John J. Pilch teaches at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore, Maryland. Together Malina and Pilch have co-authored the Social Science Commentary on the Book of Acts (2008) and the Social-Science Commentary on the Letters of Paul (2005), both from Fortress Press.

Fig. 85:
The marble street in Ephesus originally ran down to the sea, which has receded several miles since Paul's day. Because Paul had a significant ministry in Ephesus (Acts 18:18—19:41), later Pauline letters were thought to have been sent there (cf. Eph. 1:1).

The scope

This is the only introduction to the New Testament whose quality is so well recognized that it has been in continuously revised publication for over 40 years! Highly acclaimed and broadly adopted, the authors wed literary and historical approaches to focus on the question foremost in the mind of students: what is the meaning of the books of the New Testament?

Systematic, critical, reliable, and up-to-date in its scope and content, Anatomy of the New Testament assumes no prior knowledge and is jargon-free and readable by beginning students.

With over 120 combined years in the classroom, the authors have prepared teacher-friendly ancillaries that include PowerPoint chapter outlines and sample syllabi on how to teach the course thematically, in chronological sequence, or according to the current layout of the book. Also included is a chapter-by-chapter test bank. All of these ancillaries can be found at fortresspress.com/anatomynt7.

What's new in this edition?

This seventh edition has been revised throughout, to take account of current trends in scholarship and to discuss important interpretative issues, such as the Gospel of Thomas. Each chapter includes two new features:

- Have You Learned It? offers questions for analysis and synthesis
- What Do They Mean? presents definitions of key terms to enhance student comprehension and critical thinking

The text is augmented by numerous sidebars to stimulate discussion of matters "Behind," "Within," and "Beyond the New Testament." Other new features include:

- newly designed maps updated for the Seventh Edition
- 100 new images and illustrations in black and white and color
- new charts and diagrams that facilitate deeper learning
- thoroughly updated bibliographies

What are scholars saying?

"Anatomy of the New Testament by Robert Spivey and D. Moody Smith, now joined by C. Clifton Black, has been a 'classic' in the field. The latest update continues the high standards of the volume, presenting an informed and sensitive critical introduction to the New Testament in a clear and accessible fashion, particularly suited for students coming to the text for the first time. Carefully chosen illustrations, thoughtful summaries, and well-designed questions for review make this a very useful teaching tool."

—Harold Attridge, Yale University

I use this text

"I have had various editions of Anatomy of the New Testament at my elbow since 1972. For me, the balance, logic, and teaching skills of D. Moody Smith and Robert A. Spivey, along with the physical beauty of the book, made it the best available introduction for more than 40 years. This Seventh Edition is superb."

—Francis J. Moloney, Australian Catholic University

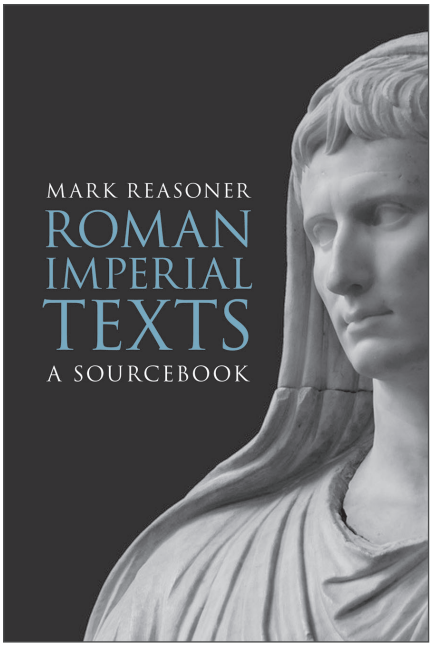

Robert A. Spivey is professor emeritus, Florida State University.

D. Moody Smith is George Washington Ivey Professor Emeritus of New Testament at The Divinity School, Duke University, Durham, North Carolina.

C. Clifton Black is Otto A. Piper Professor of Biblical Theology at Princeton Theological Seminary.

Introduction
Timeline

Part One: Divine Sons and Their Gospels
Augustus • Tiberius • Caligula • Claudius • Nero • Vespasian • Titus • Domitian

Part Two: Identity in Community
Sample Letters from the Mediterranean World • Documents from Collegia and Synagogues • Cities of the New Testament World

Part Three: The Eternal City and Its Hold on the World
Praise for Rome • Voices of Dissent • Hidden Transcripts

Mark Reasoner is associate professor of theology at Marion University in Indianapolis. He is the author of Romans in Full Circle: A History of Interpretation (2005) and The Strong and the Weak: Romans 14.1–15.13 in Context (2004) and, with Neil Elliott, Documents and Images for the Study of Paul (Fortress Press, 2010).

The scope

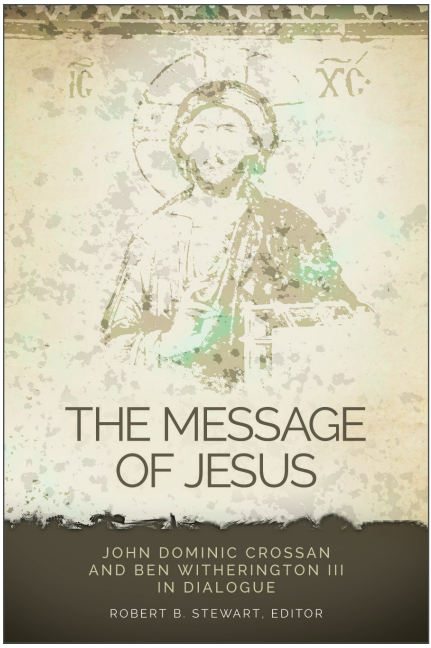

A selection of the most important sources for the cultural and political context of the early Roman Empire and the New Testament writings, Roman Imperial Texts includes freshly translated public speeches, official inscriptions, annals, essays, poems, and documents of veiled protest from the Empire's subject peoples from the reigns of Augustus to Hadrian (27 BCE to 137 CE).

"This book is a source book of Roman texts for readers of the New Testament. It is a supplement to one's reading of the New Testament, a tool to prompt consideration of how its texts relate to the Roman Empire and how the Christianities that grew out of the communities behind those texts came to relate to the state."

—From the Introduction

Part One is focused on the Gospels. Part Two is focused on the book of Acts and the letters of the New Testament—those written by Paul and those by others, and Part Three of the book is primarily focused on the book of Revelation.

New Testament texts appear in boldface so readers can find them easily, and this volume is indexed by Scripture, Roman sources, topics, and authors, so that readers can gain access as quickly as possible to the material most useful for them.

What Is Christianity?

An Introduction to the Christian Religion

Gail Ramshaw

Available

Level: undergraduate

978-0-8006-9819-5 pb 336pp $45

Also available as an ebook

978-1-4514-6520-4

Contents

Introduction: Why Study Christianity?

1. Why is the Bible central to Christianity?
2. What do Christians believe about God?
3. What do Christians believe about Jesus?
4. What do Christians believe about the Spirit and the church?
5. Why does Christianity have so many denominations and spiritualities?
6. How do Christians worship?
7. How did the church develop?
8. What are saints?
9. What do Christians say about their relationship to the state?
10. What do Christians say about sexual issues?
11. What do Christians say about science?
12. What do Christian say about religious truth?

Conclusion: Why continue studying Christianity?

Gail Ramshaw is a scholar of liturgical language and retired professor of religion at La Salle University. She served on the Revised Common Lectionary design committee and on the Church's Year task force for the Renewing Worship project of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America. Her many publications include Christian Worship, Treasures Old and New, Between Sundays, and God beyond Gender, all from Fortress Press.

The scope

Gail Ramshaw frames this new introduction to Christianity around the basic questions that students ask. Written for undergraduates with little or no background in the breadth of Christianity, the text of the book reports on the diversity of Christian belief and practice, and is accompanied with student-friendly learning helps, including sidebar definitions, art, photos, study questions, essay topics, and suggestions for further exploration in short stories, novels, and films. Also included is a Chronology that answers the question: What are some significant dates in Christian History beginning with BCE 1800, the life of Abraham, and ending with twenty-first century events, and a Book List that answers the question: What are some worthwhile books written by Christians?—covering such categories as autobiographies and memoirs, poetry and literature, and spiritual classics are included.

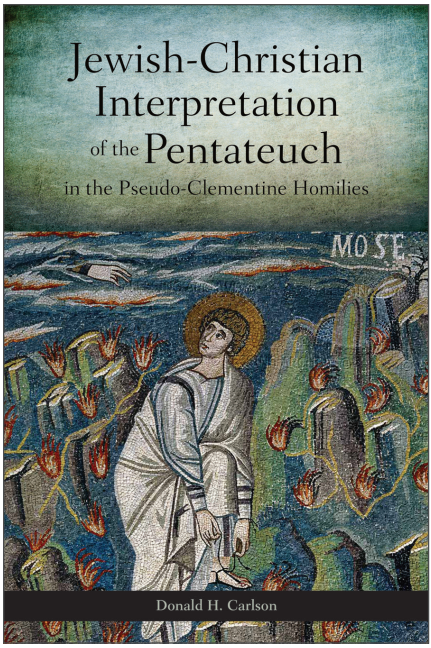

What are scholars saying?

"Gail Ramshaw has written a textbook that is both accessible for undergraduates and innovative in its presentation of Christianity. By using a variety of scholars to introduce each chapter with an 'outsider's' view, the book will appeal to the growing segment of 'nones' who populate the required religion courses at many Christian-affiliated universities and colleges. At the end of each chapter is a gold mine of suggested activities, readings, and assignments that new and veteran professors will welcome."

—Rhoda Schuler, Concordia University

"With lucid prose and with apt and arresting graphics, this text befriends the studious reader. Its organization for a comprehensive but comfortable semester, its opportunities for professorial creativity, and its erudition all together announce to the professor teaching an introductory course on Christian history—Choose me."

—Joseph Dougherty, La Salle University

Jewish-Christian Interpretation of the Pentateuch

in the Pseudo-Clementine Homilies

Donald H. Carlson

Available

Level: graduate and seminary

978-0-8006-9977-2 pb 224pp $59

ebook 978-1-4514-6967-7

The heart of the argument

Carlson's interest here is in the highly unusual theory expressed in the Homilies that the Pentateuch is saturated with "false pericopes," and that the teaching of Jesus, the "true prophet," is the criterion for establishing what the Pentateuch really means.

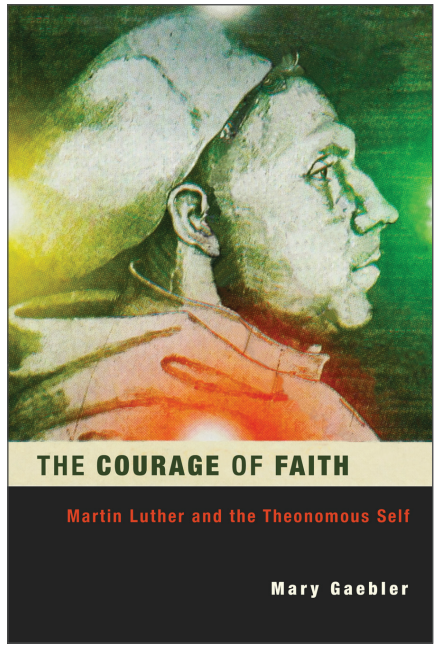

What are scholars saying?

"Thorough and accessible. . . . This is an interesting and helpful contribution both to our understanding of evolving hermeneutical theories among early Christians and the extent to which such theories emerged from a wider Jewish, pagan, as well as Christian world."

—James Carleton Paget, University of Cambridge

Donald H. Carlson teaches Classics at Xavier University in Cincinnati. He received his Ph.D. from Hebrew Union College—Jewish Institute of Religion.

The Courage of Faith

Available

Level: graduate and seminary

978-0-8006-9752-5 hc 256pp $32

ebook 978-1-4514-3862-8

The heart of the argument

Luther's thinking about will and agency evolved as his anthropology became increasingly open, with a growing recognition of faith's role in the transformation of the world.

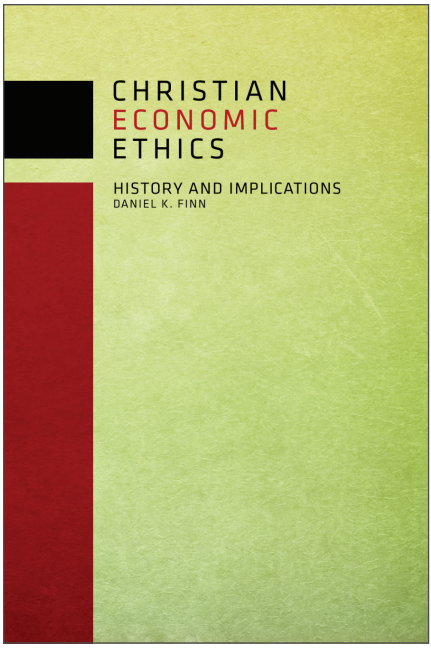

What are scholars saying?

"This is a book that both retrieves previous challenges to Luther's theology and ethics, and advances original responses to these challenges. Based on significant new research, Gaebler offers powerful new interpretations of developments in Luther's positions on gender issues, self-love, and the possibilities of human agency. This is a brilliant contribution to Luther studies and to Christian theology in general."

—Margaret A. Farley, Yale Divinity School

Mary Gaebler is assistant professor of religion at Gustavus Adolphus College, St. Peter, Minnesota, where since 2003 she has taught theological ethics.

Available

Level: upper level undergraduate

978-0-8006-9961-1 pb 420pp $49

ebook 978-1-4514-5228-0

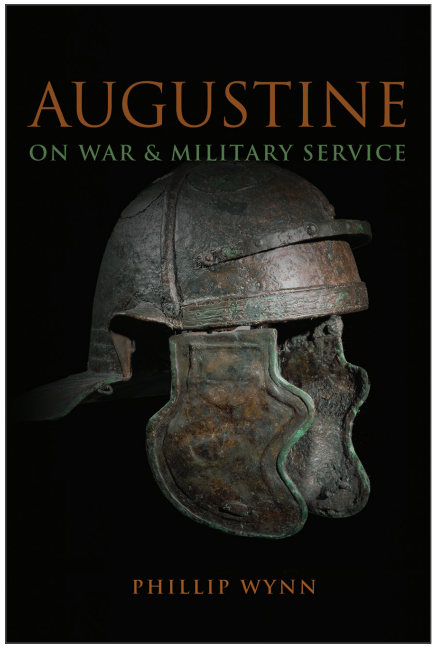

What are scholars saying?

"I can only think of one concise and apt adjective to describe Daniel Finn's Christian Economic Ethics: History and Implications: magisterial! No other single volume so deftly recounts the entire history of Christian economic ethics, Protestant and Catholic, and its development while so brilliantly engaging in a two-way dialogue between economics and Christian economic ethics. Specialists will want their own copy and beginners will find this work an indispensable introduction to the topic."

—John A. Coleman, S. J.,
Casassa Professor of Social Values Emeritus,
Loyola Marymount University

Daniel K. Finn is the William and Virginia Clemens Professor of Economics and the Liberal Arts and professor of theology at Saint John's University and the College of St. Benedict, Collegeville, Minnesota. Augustine on War and Military Service

Phillip Wynn

November

Level: graduate and seminary

978-1-4514-6473-3 pb 350pp $49

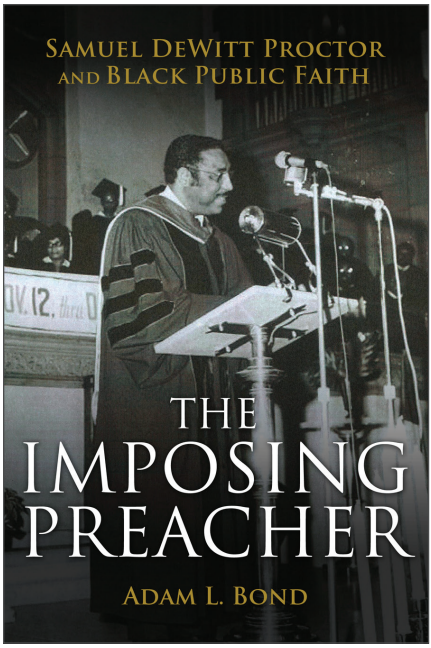

ebook 978-1-4514-6985-1

The heart of the argument

Did our modern understanding of just war originate with Augustine? In this sweeping reevaluation of the evidence, Phillip Wynn uncovers a nuanced story of Augustine's thoughts on war and military service, and gives us a more complete and complex picture of this important topic. Deeply rooted in the development of Christian thought from Tertullian onward, this reengagement with Augustine is essential reading.

Phillip Wynn completed his Ph.D. at Notre Dame under the direction of Thomas F. X. Noble and has been awarded a fellowship as Fulbright scholar in residence at Ben Gurion University in Beersheba, Israel. He has published articles on historiography and the history of ideas in the late antique and early medieval periods.

The Imposing Preacher

Samuel DeWitt Proctor and Black Public Faith

Adam L. Bond

Now Available

Level: undergraduate, seminary, clergy

978-0-8006-9972-7 pb 264pp $29

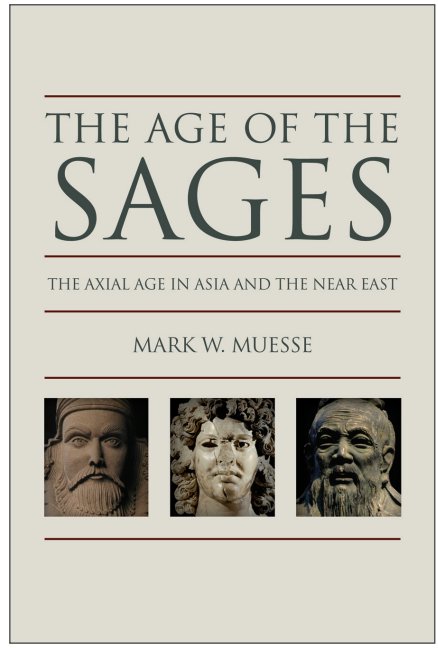

ebook 978-1-4514-5224-2

The heart of the argument

Samuel DeWitt Proctor's voice is essential to understanding the black social gospel. In the complex mix of voices from the Religious Right, Protestant fundamentalism, and black liberation theology, Proctor brought a black middle class understanding of America to his preaching. His notion of faith presented an alternative reality to the pervasive racism in the United States and sought to honor the inherent dignity of all humanity. Bond's exploration of the life of Samuel DeWitt Proctor adds a crucial piece to our understanding of twentieth century American church history.

Adam L. Bond is assistant professor of historical studies at The Samuel DeWitt Proctor School of Theology, Virginia Union University.

The Age of the Sages

The Axial Age in Asia and the Near East

Now Available

Level: undergraduate

978-0-8006-9921-5 pb 224pp $25

ebook 978-1-4514-3861-1

The heart of the argument

In this accessible introduction to the history, persons, and key texts of the "axial age" [800–200 BCE] movements in Asia and the Northeastern Mediterranean, Mark Muesse sets traditions and thinkers, including Zoroaster, Gautama Buddha, and Confucius, side by side, so students are able to see more clearly the questions with which they struggled, their similarities and differences, and how their ideas have influenced religious thought down to our day.

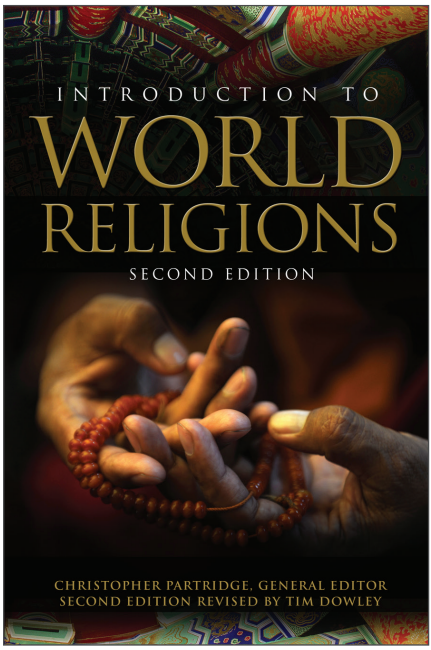

What are scholars saying?

"A unique introduction to world religions that . . . shows in a fascinating comparative perspective how Axial sources still guide us in our effort to live as responsible individuals."

—Steven Smith, Millsaps College

Mark W. Muesse is the S.J. Millard Professor in Religious Studies at Rhodes College in Memphis, Tennessee, and the author of The Hindu Traditions (Fortress, 2011).

A Study Companion to Introduction to World Religions
Second Edition
Compiled and edited by
Beth Wright

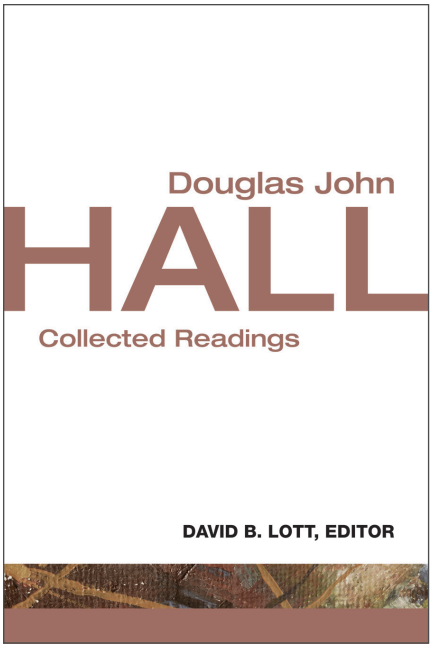

The scope
The Study Companion to Introduction to World Religions: Second Edition provides a pre-test assessment, part summaries, biographical information about key personalities, primary source readings, key terms definitions, questions for study and discussion, questions for reflection, bibliographies, and selected web resources.

Beth Wright has edited textbooks in religion for more than twelve years. She lives in Minneapolis, Minnesota.

I'm using Partridge's book!
"I am using Partridge's Introduction to World Religions: Study Edition for my World Religions course. I switched to Partridge due to the clarity of the text, the invitational pictures and presentation, but primarily because of the Study Companion. The opportunity the Study Companion presents for students to read the texts of a different religion is particularly important. One of the deciding factors was also the price. I have used another very good text in the past, but Partridge's text and Study Companion together cost half of what the other text cost, and that is a factor in our day."
—Rebecca Thurman, Wartburg College

"The Partridge text plus the student guide . . . make the composite superior to all other texts that I have used over the years. Multi-authorship for the chapters, great illustrations and layout, and less costly than standard texts—all make this book a great acquisition for students."
—Konrad Czynski, Minnesota State University

ebook 978-1-4514-6516-7

The scope
Hall's theological insights, focused on the North American context, challenge churches to embrace change and develop genuine community, uncompromised theology, and honest engagement with the larger culture as he shows the radical implications of a theology of the cross for the shape and practice of church, preaching, ministry, ethics, and eschatology.

Douglas John Hall is emeritus professor of theology at McGill University in Montreal, Quebec. Among the most widely read theologians in North America, Hall has written many popular and acclaimed works, including Lighten Our Darkness (1976), God and Human Suffering (1987), and Why Christian? (1998), as well as a full-scale trilogy in systematic theology: Thinking the Faith (1991), Professing the Faith (1996), and Confessing the Faith (1998), all from Fortress Press.

H. Gaylon Barker is adjunct assistant professor at Molloy College in Rockville Centre, New York.

Mark Brocker is pastor of St. Andrew Lutheran Church in Beaverton, Oregon, and teaches at Pacific Lutheran Theological Seminary in Berkeley, California.

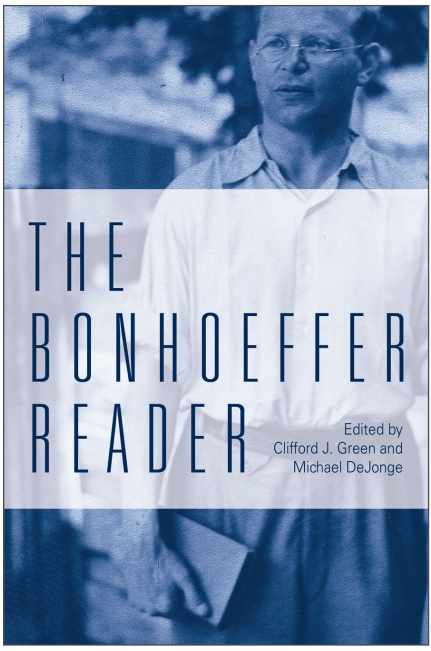

The scope

In the spring of 1935 Dietrich Bonhoeffer returned from England to direct a small illegal seminary for the Confessing Church. The seminary existed for two years before the Gestapo ordered it closed in August 1937. The two years of Finkenwalde's existence produced some of Bonhoeffer's most significant theological work as he prepared these young seminarians for the turbulence and risk of parish ministry in the Confessing Church.

Bonhoeffer and his seminarians were under Gestapo surveillance; some of them were arrested and imprisoned. Throughout, he remained dedicated to training them for the ministry and its challenges in a difficult time.

This volume includes Bible studies, sermons, and lectures on homiletics, pastoral care, and catechesis, giving a moving and up-close portrait of the Confessing Church in these crucial years—the same period during which Bonhoeffer wrote his classics, Discipleship and Life Together.

Dietrich Bonhoeffer (1906–1945) was a German pastor and theologian whose striking theological journey and public witness against the Nazi regime led to worldwide fame after his death in 1945.

978-0-8006-9994-9 pb 208pp $39

ebook 978-1-4514-6529-7

The scope
T. F. Torrance was one of the most significant English-language theologians of the twentieth century known extensively for his curatorship of the English translation of Barth's Church Dogmatics, but also for his own prodigious theological scholarship. The complexity and astonishing breadth of Torrance's output, however, have made assessment and appropriation markedly difficult. This volume seeks to rectify that lack of assessment through careful exposition of the vital centers and interconnections within Torrance's theology alongside constructive appraisal and critique of his contributions to contemporary theology.

Myk Habets is professor of systematic theology and ethics at Carey Baptist College and former lecturer in theology at the University of Otago in New Zealand. He is the author of Theosis in the Theology of T. F. Torrance (2009) and Spirit Christology: A Trinitarian Account (2009).

Kristin Johnston Largen is associate professor of systematic theology at Lutheran Theological Seminary at Gettysburg. Among her other publications are What Christians Can Learn from Buddhism: Re-Thinking Salvation (Fortress Press, 2009), and Baby Krishna, Infant Christ: A Comparative Theology of Salvation (2010).

The scope

Students of theology live in a world defined by interreligious dialogue. This text prepares students for the real task of understanding and articulating Christian beliefs in a religiously and culturally diverse world.

Concentrating on the anchoring subjects of God, creation, and humanity, Kristin Johnston Largen explores each of these loci within the broader context of interreligious dialogue with Hinduism, Judaism, Buddhism, and Islam to better understand the Christian tradition.

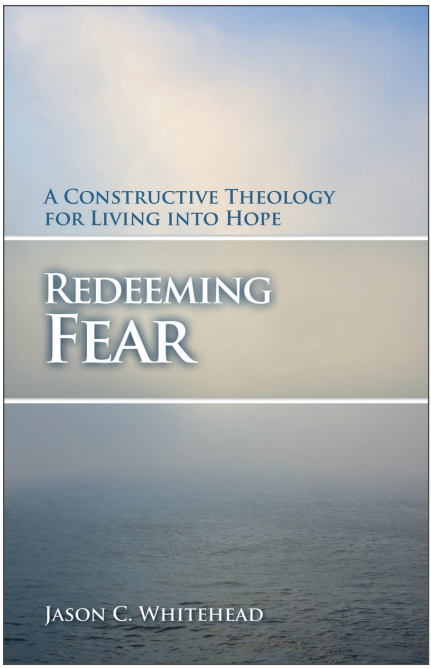

What are scholars saying?

"This is the book I've been waiting for! No other text so brilliantly, and accessibly, introduces readers to the varieties of religious belief and practice as an introduction to Christian theology, placing the Christian theological project squarely within our interreligious landscape. For the many students who arrive in theology classrooms without prior knowledge of any faith tradition, Finding God among Our Neighbors will serve remarkably well as an introduction to Christian or comparative theology. So clearly written, it will be captivating for readers interested in reflecting theologically on our multireligious landscape. This is a wonderful text, more than highly recommended!"

—Jeannine Hill Fletcher, Fordham University

"Instead of simply highlighting similarities among the religious traditions, Largen provides valuable close-up views of particular narratives, teachings, and rituals on their own terms and enables the reader to formulate her own continuing questions about how each issue is related to Christian theology. Exhibiting both religious humility and theological courage, she confronts Christian misconceptions and problematic issues of other traditions, including, for example, idolatry, caste, jihad, and chosenness, while constructing a thorough Christian theology that seeks to learn from its neighbors."

—Madhuri Yadlapati, Louisiana State University

Introduction
Part I: Why Fear? Why Now?
Part II: What Does It Mean to Be Afraid?
Part III: A Pastoral Theology of Fear and Hope
Part IV: Responding to Our Fears
Conclusion: Finding Hope

Jason C. Whitehead is an adjunct professor and directs the Office of Consultation and Guidance for Iliff School of Theology. A licensed clinical social worker and a minister in the Presbyterian Church (USA), he received his M.Div. from Union Presbyterian Seminary, his M.S.W. from Virginia Commonwealth University, and his Ph.D. in religion and psychological studies at Iliff School of Theology and the University of Denver.

The heart of the argument

Being afraid means so much more than simply fighting or running from a threat; to be afraid is to remember that something in life is worth living for. Whitehead helps readers find the roots of hope in the soil of their fears so that they can form lives and communities of hope in the midst of a culture of fear.

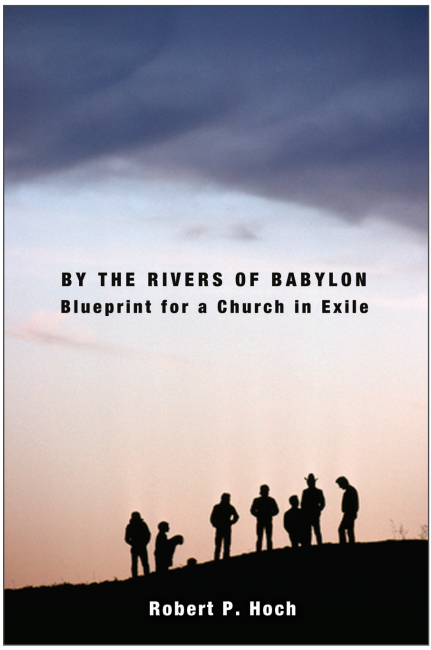

What are scholars saying?

"Whitehead challenges us to understand fear from multiple disciplinary perspectives—biology, evolution, psychology, and theology. He helps us identify our personal and communal experiences of fear and the way they shape our stories as persons and communities of faith. This book is profoundly relevant and eminently readable: a superb textbook for practical and pastoral graduate studies, as well as religious communities who want to seriously engage matters of faith."

—Carrie Doehring, Iliff School of Theology

"Whitehead's book is true 'practical theology'—truly practical and truly theology. It is also richly informative and eminently readable. It is ideal for use by church study groups but works well also for individual reading. We are all afraid and have much to be afraid of. Instead of being damaged and manipulated by our fears, we can accept them and even use them in a life of growing faith."

—John B Cobb Jr., Claremont School of Theology

December
Level: seminary, clergy
978-0-8006-9853-9 pb 160pp $18

ebook 978-1-4514-3850-5

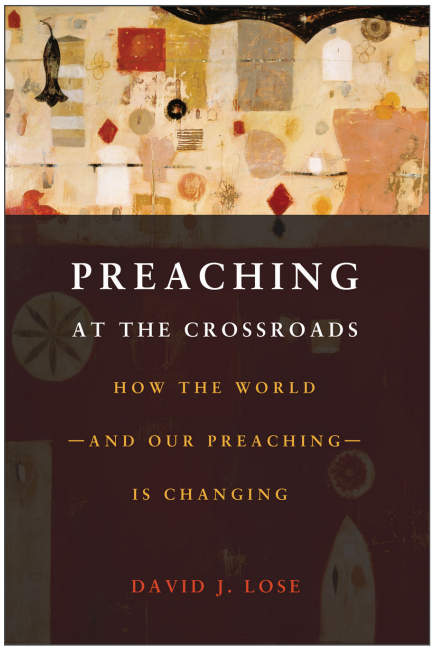

The heart of the argument

The language of exile, focused with theological and biblical narratives and coupled with depictions of real-life exilic communities, can equip church leaders as agents in the creation of new communities.

Robert Hoch reads the larger North American tradition of Christian worship and mission through the prism of visibly marginalized communities. Through this lens, leaders may come to see diversity as an indication of mission vitality, and focus less on assimilating people and more on the future promises of God and the manifold textures of incarnation.

Robert P. Hoch is assistant professor of homiletics and worship at the University of Dubuque Theological Seminary. He is author of Breathing Patterns: A Teacher's Reflections on Calling, Equipping, and Sending (2010) and a contributor to New Proclamation from Fortress Press.

Preaching at the Crossroads

December
Level: seminary, clergy
978-0-8006-9973-4 pb 100pp $19

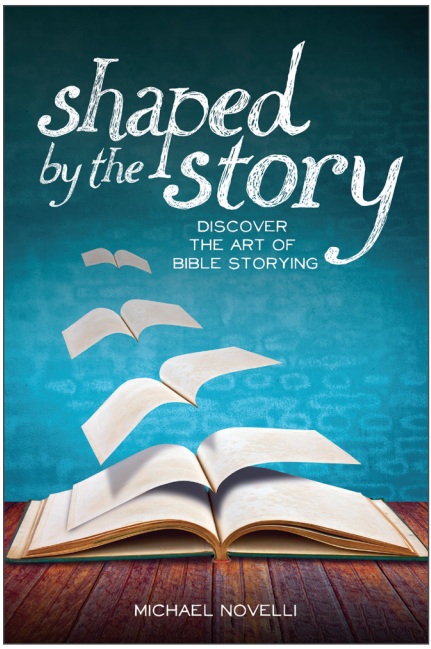

ebook 978-1-4514-5229-7

The heart of the argument

David Lose takes preachers on a tour of the major cultural influences of the last century, postmodernism, secularism, and pluralism, explaining how they have contributed to the diminishment of the church and exploring how they also offer opportunities to cultivate a more vibrant and relevant faith in the twenty-first century. Filled with lucid analysis and practical suggestions, Preaching at the Crossroads invites preachers to reclaim the art of preaching the timeless Gospel in a timely and compelling manner.

David J. Lose holds the Marbury E. Anderson Chair in Biblical Preaching at Luther Seminary in St. Paul, Minnesota, where he also serves as director of the Center for Biblical Preaching.

What are scholars saying?

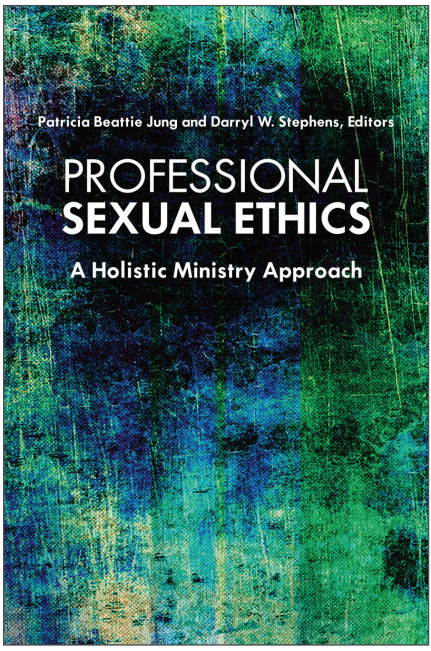

"Drawing on sociological, theological, and pastoral resources, this insightful and integrative book accomplishes a dual purpose—providing astute proposals about the practice of ministry in rural contexts while at the same time offering significant insights for the more general theory and practice of pastoral care, gleaned from the complex dynamics of rural ministry. It is a very valuable read for all seminary students and pastors."

—Christie Cozad Neuger,
United Theological Seminary of the Twin Cities

Jeanne Hoeft is associate professor of pastoral care at St. Paul School of Theology in Kansas City.

L. Shannon Jung is Franklin and Louise Cole Professor of Town and Country Ministries at Saint Paul School of Theology in Kansas City.

Contents

Part One: The Ethical Landscape of Public Ministry
Part Two: Sources of Wisdom
Part Three; The Practices of Ministry
Part Four: Healthy Leadership

Patricia Beattie Jung is professor of Christian ethics and Oubri A. Poppele Professor of Health and Welfare Ministries at Saint Paul School of Theology, Kansas City, Missouri.

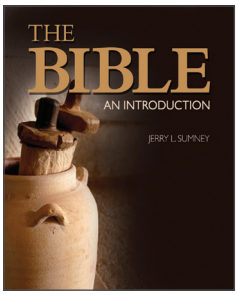

Darryl W. Stephens is Assistant General Secretary for Advocacy and Sexual Ethics in the General Commission on the Status and Role of Women in The United Methodist Church.

The scope

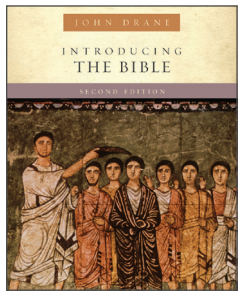

Sexual health is an essential part of maintaining professional relationships in ministry. Written by a team of respected and recognized scholars, this volume offers an interdisciplinary conversation about sexual ethics across the theological education curriculum, including pastoral care, religious education, evangelism, youth ministry, worship and liturgy, and more.

Looking beyond the counseling session to areas such as youth ministry, Christian education, and even preaching, the book makes generous use of case studies and discussion questions, and offers best practices while addressing major issues such as power, pornography, and social media as they relate to sexual ethics in congregations.

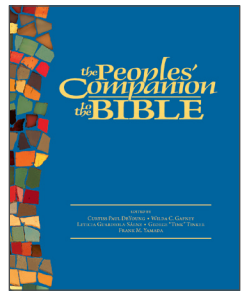

Each chapter includes an analysis of common ministry situations and resources for further study. The volume is ideal for use in courses on professional ethics for ministry, advanced leadership training, and continuing education for clergy.

Chosen Nations

Pursuit of the Kingdom of God and Its Influence on Democratic Values in Late Nineteenth-Century Britain and the United States

Christina L. Littlefield

The heart of the argument

At the heart of the biblical myth of chosenness is the idea that God has blessed a people to be a blessing to others. The six British and American thinkers examined in this study—Robert William Dale, Hugh Price Hughes, and Brooke Foss Westcott in England; Walter Rauschenbusch, Henry Codman Potter, and Josiah Strong in the United States—believed in their nation's chosenness, which also fuelled imperialistic claims, neglected the rights of native peoples, led to anti-Catholicism, and hindered the religious liberties of others.

What are scholars saying?

"This enormously stimulating book implicitly suggests another fruitful comparison—the extent to which the Christian Left of the late nineteenth century has paradoxically informed the civic faith of America's Christian Right today."
—Richard T. Hughes, Messiah College

Christina L. Littlefield is assistant professor of communication and religion at Seaver College, Pepperdine University. This volume is a revision of her dissertation at the University of Cambridge under the direction of David M. Thompson.

We Are Who We Think We Were

Christian History and Christian Ethics

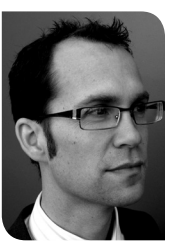

Aaron D. Conley

The heart of the argument

Conley calls into question the outdated historical methodologies in use in Christian social ethics and outlines the consequences stemming from them. By adopting the postmodern post-structuralist position of historian Elizabeth A. Clark, Conley calls ethicists to learn to read for the gaps, silences, and aporias existent in historical texts as well as in the histories represented by them.

What are scholars saying?

"A masterful, energetic exploration of the interface between our construction of historical storylines and our ethics. This book is a welcome plea for locating dialogues across differences at the center of Christian beliefs and practices during the twenty-first century."
—Vernon K. Robbins, Emory University

Aaron D. Conley earned his Ph.D. at Iliff School of Theology in Denver. He teaches regularly at Regis University in Denver. This volume is a revision of his dissertation completed at Iliff School of Theology under the direction of Miguel De La Torre.

The Interpreting Angel Motif in Prophetic and Apocalyptic Literature

David P. Melvin

The heart of the argument

Melvin traces the emergence and development of the motif of angelic interpretation of visions from late prophetic literature (Ezekiel 40–48; Zechariah 1–6) into early apocalyptic literature (1 Enoch 17–36; 72–82; Daniel 7–8). Melvin concludes that the interpreting angel motif served a polemical function in repudiating divination as a means of predicting the future, while at the same time elevating the authority of the visionary revelation, resulting in a reimagining of God that profoundly influenced subsequent Jewish and Christian tradition.

What are scholars saying?

"Melvin offers a solid piece of research . . . It will captivate the interest of scholars and students working in the areas of angelology, Israelite prophecy, wisdom literature, apocalyptic literature, and the broader area of Second Temple Judaism. . . . A welcome addition to the conversation."

—Archie T. Wright, Regent University

David P. Melvin is visiting assistant professor of biblical studies at Malone University, Canton, Ohio. This volume is a revision of his dissertation at Baylor University under the direction of Joel Burnett.

Memory and Covenant

The Role of Israel's and God's Memory in Sustaining the Deuteronomic and Priestly Covenants

Barat Ellman

The heart of the argument

Memory and Covenant applies new insights into the meaning and function of social memory to analyze the two major "religions" of the Pentateuch (D and P) and their relationship to one another. Both these traditions regard memory as a vital element of religious practice and as the principal instrument of covenant fidelity—but in very different ways.

What are scholars saying?

"Barat Ellman's book explores the meanings and functions of memory in biblical religion with theoretical sophistication and literary sensitivity. More than before is memory seen as integral to the religion of the Torah and its major themes. Though focused on the religious worldviews of the priestly and deuteronomic schools, the book takes virtually the entire Hebrew Bible into account. A very significant contribution to the study of biblical literature and religion."

—Edward L. Greenstein, Bar-Ilan University

Barat Ellman is an ordained rabbi and adjunct assistant professor of the Bible and its interpretation at Jewish Theological Seminary. This volume is a revision of her dissertation at Jewish Theological Seminary under the direction of Stephen Geller.

Give Me Children or I Shall Die

Children and Communal Survival in Biblical Literature

Laurel W. Koepf-Taylor

The heart of the argument

In the subsistence agricultural social context of the Hebrew Bible, children were necessary for communal survival. In such an economy, children's labor contributes to the family's livelihood from a young age, rather than simply preparing the child for future adult work. Ethnographic research shows that this interdependent family life contrasts significantly with that of privileged modern Westerners, for whom children are dependents.

This text seeks to look beyond the dominant cultural constructions of childhood in the modern West and the moral rhetoric that accompanies them so as to uncover what biblical texts intend to communicate when they utilize children as literary tropes in their own social, cultural, and historical context.

Laurel W. Koepf-Taylor is assistant professor of Old Testament at Eden Theological Seminary. This volume is a revision of her dissertation at Union Theological Seminary under the direction of David M. Carr.

Esther and the Politics of Negotiation

Public and Private Spaces and the Figure of the Female Royal Counselor

Rebecca S. Hancock

The heart of the argument

Was Esther unique—an anomaly in patriarchal society? Conventionally, scholars see ancient Israelite and Jewish women as excluded from the public world, their power concentrated instead in the domestic realm and exercised through familial structures. Rebecca S. Hancock demonstrates, in contrast, that because of the patrimonial character of ancient Jewish society, the state was often organized along familial lines. The presence of women in roles of queen consort or queen is therefore a key political, and not simply domestic, feature.

Attention to the narrative of Esther and comparison with Hellenistic and Persian historiography depicting "wise women" acting in royal contexts reveals that Esther is in fact representative of a wider tradition. Further, Hancock's demonstration qualifies the bifurcation of "public" (male-dominated) and "private" (female-dominated) space in the ancient Near East.

Rebecca S. Hancock teaches biblical studies at St. Mary's Seminary and University and Ecumenical Institute of Theology in Baltimore. This volume is a revision of her dissertation in the Ancient Near Eastern Studies Department of Harvard University under the direction of Jon Levenson.

Resurrection as Anti-Imperial Gospel

1 Thessalonians 1:9b-10 in Context

Edward Pillar

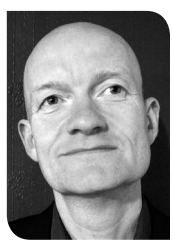

The heart of the argument

Pillar argues that the gospel of resurrection would have been heard as fundamentally anti-imperial: Jesus of Nazareth was executed by means of the epitome of imperial power. The resurrection thus subverts and usurps the empire's immense power.

What are scholars saying?

"From the vantage point of a vista of literary, numismatic, and archeological evidence, Pillar offers us a fresh look at 1 Thessalonians 1:9–10, the first literary attestation of the resurrection of Jesus from the dead. Sharing the lens of Pillar's perspective on what Paul wrote about the resurrection in the earliest of his letters helps us to understand in a new and different way just how much of an impact the announcement of the good news of the resurrection made upon those who first heard Paul's gospel. Resurrection as Anti-Imperial Gospel is a must read."

—Raymond F. Collins, Brown University

Queering the Ethiopian Eunuch

Strategies of Ambiguity in Acts

Sean D. Burke

The heart of the argument

Luke, Burke argues, intended to "queer" his reader's expectations and so to present the boundary-transgressing potentiality of a new community.

What are scholars saying?

"Sean Burke's remarkable analysis of the Ethiopian Eunuch in the book of Acts not only interprets the eunuch's many social ambiguities as a fitting and insightful introduction to the theology of Acts as a whole, but it also rests that interpretation on a comprehensive and surprisingly enlightening study of sexualities and masculinities in Mediterranean antiquity. The historical depth and scope of this volume is amazing, but the originality involved in wedding that historical work with the productive proclivities of postmodernism and specifically queer theory makes Burke's work outstanding in the field. It clearly stands as a model for how theory, history, and biblical scholarship can be integrated to produce creative, new readings of biblical texts."

Judgment according to Works in Romans

The Meaning and Function of Divine Judgment in Paul's Most Important Letter

Kevin W. McFadden

The heart of the argument

McFadden shows how the theme of judgment appears in two distinct ways in Paul's letter to the Romans, and that these ways belong together in a cohesive understanding of Paul's theology and his purpose in the letter.

What are scholars saying?

"Looking for a thorough update to the seemingly never-ending debate over Paul's puzzling combination of judgment according to works and justification by faith alone apart from works? Look no further. This is it. McFadden takes on the host of 'new,' 'fresh,' and other perspectives on Paul's soteriology, and argues forcefully that the 'old' ways are more than worthy of another hearing, though with a few new twists of his own."

George Fox Evangelical Seminary

Divine Eloquence and Human Transformation

Rethinking Scripture and History through Gregory of Nazianzus and Hans Frei

Ben Fulford

The heart of the argument

Ben Fulford argues for a densely historical and theological reading of scripture centered in a Christological rubric. The argument herein uncovers a figural pattern of divine action and presence in the sacred texts. Addressing the challenge of historicity and historical consciousness, Fulford argues for the relevance of pre-modern approaches to scripture, and offers a fresh and extensive account of two salient figures from the early and contemporary tradition, thus enacting a theology of retrieval as a resource on a present issue of vital importance.

What are scholars saying?

"Lucid, cogent and learned, this book exemplifies confidence that Christian theology has ample resources to articulate a coherent understanding of Scripture as divine instruction."

—John Webster, University of Aberdeen

Early Arabic Christian Contributions to Trinitarian Theology

The Development of the Doctrine of the Trinity in an Islamic Milieu

Thomas W. Ricks

The heart of the argument

Ricks provides an overlooked angle on the history of Trinitarian theology and brings attention to several profound Christian figures rarely found in Western accounts. He demonstrates that fresh thinking of this cornerstone doctrine occurred in the new context of a regnant Islamic culture; in this context, Christian theologians discovered the salience of the Nicene doctrine while engaging a new religious partner.

What are scholars saying?

"In this carefully researched study, Ricks examines oft-neglected eighth and ninth century Arabic Christian defenses of their Christological and Trinitarian beliefs against Islamic accusations of polytheism. This work is an important contribution to both the history of Christian theology and the contemporary Christian-Muslim dialogue."

—John P. Galvin,
The Catholic University of America

Playful, Glad, and Free

Karl Barth and a Theology of Popular Culture

Jessica DeCou

The heart of the argument

Grounding the study in Barth's eschatology, DeCou shows that Barth's approach recognized that the freedom of theology is qualified by the freedom of the Word and the freedom of secular culture.

What are scholars saying?

"In this wonderfully alert and exuberant study, Jessica DeCou develops a full-blown Barthian theology of popular culture. Drawing on Barth's understanding of work and play, she argues that the theologian's job is to play with popular culture in a way that respects the proper freedom and limits of cultural production. This is not only a creative and exciting new reading of Barth, but also an invitation to a more rigorous and more generous engagement with the everyday materials of popular culture."

—Benjamin Myers,
Charles Sturt University, Sydney, Australia

Jessica DeCou is visiting lecturer in theology at Pittsburgh Theological Seminary. This volume is a revision of her dissertation completed at the University of Chicago under the direction of Kathryn Tanner.

The Sign of the Gospel

Toward an Evangelical Doctrine of Infant Baptism after Karl Barth

W. Travis McMaken

The heart of the argument

McMaken argues for a constructive reclamation of infant baptism that accords with Barth's overarching theological concerns and insights, notably from Barth's mature theological commitments.

What are scholars saying?

"This wide-ranging, insightful, and sophisticated work is, without doubt, a signal contribution to Barth studies: a fascinating explication of the Church Dogmatics and related texts, that will be gratefully received. Yet it is also a valuable intervention into contemporary discussions, and will be of especial interest to those who wish to think well—and to think better—about baptism."

—Paul Dafydd Jones, University of Virginia

Christ and Analogy

The Christocentric Metaphysics of Hans Urs von Balthasar

Junius Johnson

The heart of the argument

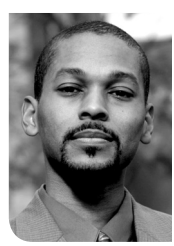

Johnson presents an analysis of von Balthasar's work in dogmatics and provides the structural linchpin for understanding the whole of this massive systematic theology by reconstructing the metaphysics of von Balthasar. Taking the person of Jesus Christ as the metaphysical starting point, he highlights the fundamental connections to key doctrinal, historical, and philosophical issues.

What are scholars saying?

"Crisp writing, clear thought, insightful reflection on a seminal and influential thinker's take on one of the most fundamental themes of theology—what more would you want from a book in theology? This is in fact what you get with Johnson's Christ and Analogy. Whether you are interested in von Balthasar, in theological method or in relationship between metaphysics and theology, you should read this book."

Christ Crucified in a Suffering World

The Unity of Atonement and Liberation

Nathan D. Hieb

The heart of the argument

What is the connection between Christian doctrine and concrete social action? This question marks the often unarticulated divide between systematic theology and liberation theology. Examining the work of Karl Barth, T. F. Torrance, and Jon Sobrino, Hieb contests this bifurcation, specifically around the nodal points of the crucifixion, or the doctrine of atonement, and the context of suffering.

What are scholars saying?

"Nathan Hieb's first book is not only a remarkable theological study but a book which integrates several fields of inquiry usually kept at arm's length from each other: Hegel's philosophy, Barth's dogmatics, Sobrino's liberationism, Torrance's systematics, and his own global missionary experiences! Simply put, I am impressed—and enthused!"

—Veli-Matti Kärkkäinen, Fuller Theological Seminary and University of Helsinki

Nathan D. Hieb is the author of several articles published in Theology, International Journal of Systematic Theology, and Koinonia. This volume is a revision of his dissertation completed at Princeton Theological Seminary under the direction of George Hunsinger.

Waiting and Being

Creation, Freedom, and Grace in Western Theology

Joshua B. Davis

The heart of the argument

The problem of creation and grace has a long history of contention within Protestant and Catholic theology, involving not only internecine conflict within the traditions but fueling, as well, ecumenical debates that have continued a dogmatic divide. This volume traces out that conflict in modern Catholic and Protestant dogmatics and provides a historical genealogy that situates the origin of the problem within different emphases in the thought of St. Augustine.

Davis puts forward an argument and reconstruction that overcomes abstractions and divisions and calls for a reclamation of the reading of Augustine in Aquinas and Luther, a recovery of an ethical metaphysics, and a Christological reconstruction of being and otherness as the path toward a concrete union of creation and grace.

Joshua B. Davis is assistant professor of systematic theology at The General Theological Seminary in New York. This volume is a revision of a dissertation completed at Vanderbilt University under the supervision of Paul DeHart.

Embedded Grace

Christ, History, and the Reign of God in Schleiermacher's Dogmatics

Kevin M. Vander Schel

The heart of the argument

Vander Schel takes up the important issue of the coordination of grace and history in Schleiermacher, arguing for its significance in understanding the dynamics of Schleiermacher's dogmatics and its grounding and realization in Christology. This volume not only continues the recasting of Schleiermacher's work in its wider context, but unpacks the dogmatic network within the paramount texts, as well as bringing crucial texts to the fore often neglected in English language scholarship.

As such, this volume performs an innovative rethinking of revelation, grace, history, Christology, and ecclesiology in Schleiermacher, with particular attention to the pivotal dogmatic volume, The Christian Faith, and the unpublished Ethics.

Kevin M. Vander Schel is a Catherine of Siena post-doctoral fellow at Villanova University. As a Fulbright scholar, Vander Schel studied the unpublished papers of Schleiermacher at Humboldt University in Berlin. This volume is a revision of his dissertation completed at Boston College under the direction of Frederick Lawrence.
